PNPs can be conveniently prepared either from preformed polymers or by direct polymerization of monomers using classical polymerization or polyreactions. Methods like solvent evaporation, salting-out, dialysis and supercritical fluid technology, involving the rapid expansion of a supercritical solution or rapid expansion of a supercritical solution into liquid solvent, can be utilized for the ...

Electrical impedance tomography (EIT) is a noninvasive type of medical imaging in which the electrical conductivity, permittivity, and impedance of a part of the body is inferred from surface electrode measurements and used to form a tomographic image of that part. Electrical conductivity varies considerably among various biological tissues (absolute EIT) or the movement of fluids and gases ...

Subjective norms are normative stimuli, beliefs and motivations to comply with a particular act, which is largely informed by consultation or observation of the behaviors of others (Ajzen, 1991, Aronson et al., 2010). It has been shown that an individual's behavior is influenced or motivated by what he or she observes to be the norm in his or her environment (Chan et al., 2005, Knapp and ...

The respiratory quotient (or RQ or respiratory coefficient), is a dimensionless number used in calculations of basal metabolic rate (BMR) when estimated from carbon dioxide production. It is calculated from the ratio of carbon dioxide produced by the body to oxygen consumed by the body. Such measurements, like measurements of oxygen uptake, are forms of indirect calorimetry.

Biogenesis. Some mechanisms have been recognized with respect to the progression of exosomes formation, but much remains to be understood. First, endocytic vesicles arise in lipid raft domains of the plasma membrane through endocytosis, leading to the intracellular formation of early endosomes.
